Raju's Mobile - Read a Story

One day, Bheem and his friends were playing cricket in the park. Bheem hit a six. The ball flew high in the sky and Raju ran to catch it. But the ball flew right into a bush and Raju, who was looking at the ball, didn't see the bush at all and fell into it as well.

In the bush, he found a strange thing. He forgot about the ball in the bush and ran back to his friends with the strange thing. They were all very surprised and stared at it.

Suddenly, Dholu-Bholu found something written on the back of the thing. They both read it out loud, "Ph-Pho-Phone." Jaggu pressed a button on the thing and it made a beeping sound. Suddenly, the front of the thing switched to a colorful screen with some apps.

Raju clicked on one app; they could see the weather of Dholakpur. In another, they could see the time. Raju said, "I found this thing, so I will keep it." And from that day on Raju stopped coming to the park.

One day, Kalia said, "Let's go and see why Raju hasn't come to the park in so many days." Everyone agreed. They all ran to Raju's house and saw him, lying on the bed and playing games on the phone he had found the other day. When they all asked him why he didn't come to play in the park, Raju replied, "I don't have time to play with all of you." Everyone left saddened by Raju's reply.

After everyone had left, Raju felt bad for talking to everyone rudely and not giving them any time. So he ran out of his house and put the phone back in the bush, and ran to his friends to say sorry. Everyone was happy and said, "It's okay," to Raju. Bheem said, "So Raju, did you understand how that phone kept you busy from meeting even us?" Chhutki added, "You also took something without knowing who it belonged to." Raju was sad.

Kalia said, "Cheer up Raju. Now Let's play!" After day that, Raju never took something that didn't belong to him.
